Advancing the
Civil Defense Bar®

BANKRUPTCY. Few words in legal jargon are as recognized by civil defense attorneys yet remain so clouded in mystery. More and more, we are called upon to defend cases where the plaintiff has filed bankruptcy. For the unknowing defense counsel, this may mean missing out on defenses that we had no idea even existed.

Fear not, loyal GDLA members, we have the answers for you -- or rather we have someone who does. Please join us for a lunch and learn with Todd Hennings, Managing Member of Macey Wilensky Kessler & Hennings LLC, as he provides GDLA members with a civil defense attorney's primer on what we need to know about bankruptcy.

Mr. Hennings regularly represents debtors, creditors and trustees before the U.S. Bankruptcy Court. He has a great depth of experience guiding debtors through the Chapter 11 reorganization process, overseeing orderly liquidations, protecting creditor interests in all manner of lending arrangements, and assisting trustees and individuals in connection with the pursuit of claims belonging to the bankruptcy estate.

He has served as a staff attorney for bankruptcy judges in all three districts in Georgia. He will arm us with the knowledge we need to put forth arguments such as Equitable Estoppel -- and if you don't know what that is, you should!
